

Making Notation Accessible: Orchestras for All

This organisation has a course on 'Music Leadership Training'. Part of this is a module, 'Making Notation Accessible'. The section within this on 'Supporting Musicians with Dyslexia' has been created by the British Dyslexia Association's Music Committee.

Music Leadership Training

Orchestras for All is here to break down barriers to the life-changing experience of ensemble music-making for 11-18 year olds. We know that behind every young musician is an inspiring teacher or music leader, and we're here to support you too.

Music Leadership Training is a continuing professional development (CPD) programme that helps music leaders to build the tools, strategies and practical conducting techniques to start or develop an instrumental ensemble in your school or community.

Our online modules provide flexible, hands-on training rooted in inclusive practice. Whether brushing up on conducting, finding or creating suitable music for an ensemble to play, or getting tips on running inclusive rehearsals, you can pick-and-choose the areas you feel you need.

The screenshot shows the 'Orchestras for All' logo on the left and a red banner with 'Music Leadership Training' on the right. Below the logo is a list of 'In This Module' items: 'Making Notation Accessible', 'Introduction', 'Arranging for Individuals', 'Alternatives to Stave Notation', 'Including Percussion Players', 'Including Guitarists and Pianists', 'Supporting Musicians with Dyslexia', and 'Figurenotes: A way in and around notation'. To the right of this list is a section titled 'Making Notation Accessible' with a sub-header 'You need to register for this module to view its content.' and a 'Buy this module' button.

All 19 modules can be accessed at <https://ensembleleadership.co.uk/>

Making Notation Accessible is accessed at <https://ensembleleadership.co.uk/modules/making-notation-accessible/> and costs £25.00

This screenshot shows the 'Orchestras for All' logo and 'Music Leadership Training' banner. Below is a breadcrumb trail: 'Home / Arranging and composing / Making Notation Accessible'. A large image shows hands holding sheet music. To the right, the module title 'Making Notation Accessible' is displayed with a price of '£25.00'. A description follows: 'This module aims to help you create effective and accessible notation to enable all your players learn their parts and enjoy playing together.' Below this is a 'Buy Now' button. A 'Module Description' section is partially visible at the bottom, starting with 'This module will give you some approaches and strategies to arrange music for musicians who do not use stave notation or are at an early stage in learning it, to support them to fully participate in an ensemble.' and a category 'Arranging and composing' with another 'Buy Now' button.
